Out of this almost surrealistic reality grew the world reformers and all sorts of innovators and above all the dreamers and those who hoped for a different Jewish life. Israel Beker, A pupil of this world absorbed the feelings of the beaten and the hunted, but also the feeling of national pride; he is anchored in the roots of Judaism but also in Universal culture. He, who absorbed all this, went through the Holocaust and remained alive, grew strong on the boards of the stage and adopted ...

Exodus not only shows God's deliverance of Israel from Pharaoh in Egypt, but it also sets the stage for the messianic king, Jesus, to deliver his people from their sins and conquer the devil, the ultimate evil tyrant (Matt. 1:21; 12:28). Second, the Lord will form a godly community. "I will take you as my people, and I will be your God" (Exod. 6:7a).

The prophet Samuel makes a special trip to Bethlehem and anoints him the next king of Israel. God chose David to replace Saul who would someday lose his life because he departed from His ways. A few years after his anointing, David fights and takes the life of Goliath the giant, who was a Philistine living in Gath. His basic faith led the future king to conclude that God would ultimately defend those who are his, something the entire Israelite army lacked the faith to accept.
